DIPLOMA IN
Cultural Resource Management

Focus on museum or heritage principles, key areas of practice and approaches to the management of cultural organizations by completing three core and seven elective courses leading to this widely respected diploma.

Eligibility
Diploma Program applicants must normally hold a bachelor's degree or its equivalent, be admissible to the University of Victoria, and be actively involved in a paid or volunteer capacity in related professional activities.

CORE COURSES:

Museum Principles and Practices I HA 486A (1.5 units)
Learn the foundations of museum practice and explore the ways in which museums create and preserve knowledge through their curatorial and collections management functions. This course addresses a range of functional tasks encountered in museums, and also emphasizes a number of important themes in museology.

Museum Principles and Practices II HA 486B (1.5 units)
Learn the ways in which museums present a diverse range of exhibitions, programs and other outreach activities to meet their educational mandate and explore the governance and management structures needed to ensure that the museum meets its mission and goals.

Heritage Resource Management HA 487A (1.5 units)
This course introduces you to values-based conservation and the practices that flow from it. A broad range of case studies is used to illustrate key concepts, and the assignments provide you with the opportunity to apply ideas and concepts to real situations. Among the topics that are covered in the course are current definitions of historic place, authenticity and conservation, and the links between heritage conservation and broader societal goals, such as sustainability.
