

Call for Instructors

Palliative Care Pharmacy

17 September 2020

The University of Victoria's Division of Continuing Studies seeks pharmacists with expertise in palliative care to teach its online, asynchronous Palliative Care Pharmacy course.

This 6-week course offers pharmacists the knowledge and skills to support patients (and their families), as well as to provide specialized support to other members of the interprofessional team (including nurses and family physicians) in delivering palliative care. The course is open to all pharmacists, but is especially designed for those practicing in community settings. The course is accredited for 18 CEUs by the Canadian Council on Continuing Education in Pharmacy.

All curriculum has been developed. The instructor's role is to:

- Monitor discussion forums near-daily
- Facilitate student discussion of learning activities, providing guidance to students in developing their reflective practice skills and application of pharmacy knowledge
- Provide additional context and examples, as needed, from the instructor's own experience of working in palliative care
- Answer student questions and identify additional resources to provide, as needed
